Coal is scarce in town at present, and townspeople are regretting that they did not put in their winters supply before the cold weather set in. Teamsters could make good money by drawing coal from the mines east of here.

SUCCESSFUL BOX SOCIAL

On Friday evening the 12 inst. a very successful Box Social was held at Tangbryn Schoolhouse, the object was to raise money to buy an organ for use in the school as well as on Sunday in the Sunday School and preaching service. Rev. W. A. Smith has made arrangements to preach there every other Sunday beginning the first of December. Miss Oldford, the teacher, had worked hard to train the children and decorate the schoolhouse for the occasion, which was a delight to all. Arthur Gittos was chosen as Chairman, and a very interesting programme was rendered mostly by the school children with a few selections by some of the elder ones.

Sandy Spooner and Mac Ferguson with their violins and Miss Oldford on the organ furnished some delightful music.

Mr. L. Casey acted as auctioneer of the boxes, the bidding was very lively and the proceeds amounted to $87.25. Everyone present enjoyed a delightful evening.

RUNAWAY ACCIDENT

A serious runaway accident occurred on Wednesday by which Mrs. Noehren was badly injured, while driving with a livery team, near town, the horses became frightened and in helping her husband hold them, she was thrown out of the buggy and injured her knee. We are sorry to hear that she is still unable to leave her bed but hope soon to see her around again.

COCHRANE MAN SUICIDES

Leaving a note addressed to his parents, in which he said he was a sinner who had broken every commandment in the Bible, and asking God's forgiveness, Frank Bradfield, a prosperous rancher of Cochrane, committed suicide by hanging some time between last Sunday and last Thursday. His body was found Thursday. Bradfield owned a homestead and half section in the Lochend district, northeast of Cochrane, and had $1,000 in cash. He was a bachelor. A week ago Sunday he called at the home of a man named Bean, two miles from his place and had dinner with the family. He appeared to be sick. That is the last he was seen alive. On Thursday a man named Elwood having some business to transact with him, went to his cabin. The door was partly open, and, looking in, Elwood was horrified to see to corpse of his acquaintance dangling from a rope attached to a 2x4 scantling. An overturned chair beside him told plainly the manner in which he succeeded in ending his life. The rope had stretched so much, however that the man's toes touched the floor.

It is believed that the man committed suicide while temporarily insane.

CHAPTER VI.

"WHOM GOD HATH JOINED TOGETHER LET NO MAN PUT ASUNDER."

He had come directly to his subject, feeling that it was best so. Mrs. Penrose looked at him in the greatest astonishment.

"You—love—Dorothy?" she said slowly.

"Yes," replied Malcolm Kirk simply. "I have loved her for four years. Ever since I entered the seminary, in fact."

Mrs. Penrose sat still and looked more keenly at the awkward, homely figure in her reception room. She was a woman of great quickness of perception. To do her justice she had previously a large number of admirers, and a sense of justice which came to her through a long line of pilgrim ancestors. She saw in the man who had just declared his love for her niece an abruptly something more than a common average man. There was a look in his eye that spoke of limitless endurance, and his voice was of an unusual quality, very nearly if not quite equal to a rare gift of music or art.

She rose and went to the window and looked far down the beach. Then she turned toward Malcolm Kirk and said with some emphasis:

"What you mean is not to understand to me, Mr. Kirk, I, I need not say, a complete surprise to me. I suppose you know that Mr. Raleigh is a lover of Dorothy?"

"No more than I am," said Malcolm Kirk quickly.

"I suppose you know he is an old friend of the family and that Mr. Gilbert favored his suit?"

"That has nothing to do with my love for her," said Malcolm Kirk softly. Mrs. Penrose smiled slightly. Then she frowned and looked somewhat anxiously at him.

"What do you expect to do?" she asked somewhat vaguely.

"I am going to ask Dorothy Gilbert to be my wife."

"If she loves you?" said Mrs. Penrose, a little grimly.

"Of course, if she loves me," replied Malcolm Kirk simply.

There was silence in the room. A servant came in quietly and lighted two long candles on the mantel. The dust and the candlelight blended together softly, and Malcolm Kirk looked out of his side of the room at Dorothy's aunt with a somewhat pale face, calm, however, and fully self-possessed. Even Francis Raleigh, with all his inherited instincts toward gentlemanly habits, was not equal to Malcolm Kirk during a supreme crisis.

Mrs. Penrose went over to the window again. Then she returned and took a seat near Malcolm Kirk.

"Of course after what you have told me, Mr. Kirk, it will be—yes you see the awkwardness of the situation will be embarrassing for you and Mr. Raleigh to meet."

"Why?" asked Malcolm Kirk.

"Well, it will, won't it?" she asked in some slight irritation.

"I don't think so. I have nothing to be embarrassed about."

Mrs. Penrose was silent again. After the lapse of a few moments she said:

"I have not asked you what your prospects are, Mr. Kirk. Pardon me if I seem abrupt, but you have set me the example. I am the nearest relative Dorothy has now since my brother's death. She has been accustomed all her life to the comforts of wealth. To such comforts as these, her glance swept the room carelessly, but with studied meaning. "May I ask what you can offer Dorothy in case?"

"He can become my wife?" said Malcolm Kirk, continuing the sentence.

"Yes, in case she becomes your wife."

His face had grown a little paler, and the muscles about his mouth had stiffened while Mrs. Penrose was speaking. But he observed her calmly enough.

"I can offer her a home and comforts. I have a definite position. I do not need to say that I am poor. My life in the Home of the Fatherland, which I am going to be full of hardships. I might perhaps share them with me. I would prefer to say—"

He spoke with the first hesitancy he had yet shown—"that I have a possible source of income in my pen. I expect to earn as much as my salary by that means. I have once or twice done that during my college and seminary course."

"So that the most you can offer my niece would be $1,200 or $1,500 a year?" asked Mrs. Penrose, with the nearest approach to sharpness.

"By no means, ma'am," said Malcolm Kirk, and his face glowed with the eloquence of his answer. "This is not the most I can offer her. The most I can offer is the love I bear her, and all the money in the world without that would be very little to offer."

"He's right about that," Mrs. Penrose spoke to herself softly. Malcolm Kirk did not hear what she said, but that at least thing he did not know her history nor the inner emptiness of her unloved married life.

There was silence again in the room. The two candles on the mantel were distinct and clear now as the dusk had slowly deepened.

A step came up the path, and the door opened. Mrs. Penrose and Malcolm Kirk both rose as Dorothy entered the reception room alone.

She came in with her head erect, and there was light enough for her aunt

"Yes, I will share your life with you, Yes, I love you."

and Malcolm Kirk to see in her face the tokens of some recent excitement.

"Where is Francis?" Mrs. Penrose asked.

"He is not coming back tonight," replied Dorothy softly, and then for the first time she saw Malcolm Kirk standing there by the fireplace.

She took an eager step toward him, and then suddenly stopped, while her face glowed rosy red in the candlelight. As for Malcolm Kirk, he stood very erect and still, but out of his eyes shone the lover's look as he faced the woman of his heart's longing. He did not try to conceal it, and Dorothy knew as well as if he had spoken it aloud that he said, "I love you, Dorothy Gilbert, and I cannot do my life without you."

Mrs. Penrose saw that look also and respected it.

The servant entered and announced that tea was ready, and Malcolm Kirk found himself standing with Dorothy and saying some very common thing about being glad to meet her. A few minutes later he found himself at the table with Dorothy and her aunt. He ate and talked at first with a repressed excitement that gradually became a source of eloquent conversation. No one asked any more questions about Francis Raleigh. It is certain that Mrs. Penrose and Malcolm Kirk understood that he had pleaded his suit again with Dorothy and had again been unsuccessful.

"He has given him his answer," said Malcolm Kirk to himself, and there was the first positive hope in his heart that he had dared to feel. He had never appeared to such good advantage. Mrs. Penrose, experienced as she was in the ways of society and familiar with some of the most brilliant men and women of the day, had seen Malcolm Kirk's voice and manner. His awkwardness for awhile was subordinate to his high gifts.

Mr. Penrose was in New York on business. Malcolm Kirk learned afterward some things in his history and why John Gilbert had been allowed to meet his great financial losses without help from his own sister, who by a large extent had been powerless to persuade her husband to come to her brother's aid. But she was absorbed tonight in the thought of Dorothy. He knew that the crisis in his life had come.

After tea they went into the reception room again. Mrs. Penrose sat for half an hour and then suddenly went out, and Dorothy and Malcolm Kirk were left alone.

He was fully aware that the whole future of his life would be shaped by the events of the next few minutes, but he had never felt more a Christian than now. There was a positive religious excitement about the pure, noble character in all the thought of his love for Dorothy. There always had been. He felt that it was no cheap or silly or shallow sentiment that moved him to think of her as of no other being in the world. There had not been a night of his life since he began to love her when he had failed to speak her name in a prayer. He knew that his Christian faith was sanctified and beautified by this human love.

He rose and went over near her. He held the miniature in his hand. He knew it was in some simplicity, but in great directness.

"You know what I have come for. You know that I love you wholly. You know what my life will be. You know that I am poor. Dorothy, can you share such a life with me? Must I give this back, or may I keep it at my own risk?"

She was sitting with her face partly in shadow, and she slowly rose and turned and faced him. Like all girls who dream of lovers, she had her dreams, her ideals, her imaginings. She looked up at him now, and the blood rushed impetuously through him as he saw the beginning of her answer. She had learned to love him during his absence abroad, during the first sorrow, during the days that followed her bereavement. It was not so sudden as it might seem, for Dorothy had learned when Ralph spoke to her that afternoon that the greatest reason why she could not love him was because she already loved Malcolm Kirk. So she gave him then and there what he asked. "Ah, Malcolm Kirk, not this side of heaven will you know the power of this love that has lifted your heart and all it contained when you first heard the woman you loved say as she lifted her face to yours: 'Yes, I will share your life with you. Yes, I love you.'"

Two hours later Malcolm Kirk went out into the starry night and down on the sea beach, and with the freshness of the sea breeze blowing about his uncovered head he thanked God for the answer which he had given to his heart's heart. They had had much to say, as true lovers always have. Always they had come back to the undying truth, that love for each other. "She loves me!" he kept saying to himself. "A—J—the waves and the night breeze and the stars and the moon and the lights and the peace near the beach all joined in the same song. He walked up and down the sands until the early morning. He found his feet wet once with tears. He ran across a long strip of beach exultant and walked from one of his reveries to find himself kneeling in prayer. But what he ate or whether he ate anything was probably unknown to him; at least he was not able to give Dorothy satisfactory answers. He found his feet wet once with tears. He ran across a long strip of beach exultant and walked from one of his reveries to find himself kneeling in prayer. But what he ate or whether he ate anything was probably unknown to him; at least he was not able to give Dorothy satisfactory answers.

His dream was a reality. She met him with the look on her face that was never to die out of it as long as he lived, and together they went to see Mrs. Penrose.

Dorothy's aunt was somewhat perturbed. But she was not the least astonished at the events of the last 24 hours. Dorothy had told her all, and there was no question in Mrs. Penrose's mind as to the result. John Gilbert had made her definite glad choice of this awkward, unhandson, poor young minister as her future husband. She could not deny that the young man was a gentleman; also that he had very superior qualities of mind and heart. But the fact remained that he had no prospects except his Home Missionary field, and a somewhat uncertain income from occasional work.

When she pictured Dorothy in a do house or a dugout or a shanty in that remote, uncouth place called "out west," living on a piece of plain, un-cultured people, such as she placidly took for granted lived on the prairies, Mrs. Penrose's face darkened.

Strange choice was the strangest thing he ever knew.

"And yet she loves him truly," she said to herself as Dorothy and Malcolm Kirk came in that morning, both of them glorified by the greatest thing that ever happened to Dorothy. She looked so beautiful. Malcolm Kirk had never felt so like a giant in possibility.

THE SUNLIGHT SCHOOL

Lesson VIII.—Fourth Quarter,
For Nov. 21, 1909.

THE INTERNATIONAL SERIES.

Text of the Lesson, II Cor. xi, 11, 12—Memory Verses, 24, 25—Golden Text, II Cor. xii, 9—Commentary Prepared by Rev. D. M. Stearns.

The topic of this lesson is "Paul's Story of His Life," and yet that seems to be more fully told in his testimony before Aetna in chapter xxi, or even in his address from the castle stairs in chapter xxii, or more concisely in our psalm, or more fully in putting these three records together. The verses assigned us for today's study are rather a resume of his sufferings, with special reference to his being stored to death at Lystra and his marvelous experience at that time. With such a record as that in chapter xi, 23-28, who would feel of his anything that can begin to compare with it in the matter of suffering for Christ's sake? At the time of his conversion the Lord came to him, and he was certainly not great things he must suffer for my sake" (Acts ix, 16), and this seems in our psalm as if he had said the bill quite fully. Let us understand a little more fully the nature of suffering as set forth in Rom. v, 3; Phil. i, 29; and in our psalm, and elsewhere. It is made unmistakably plain that the suffering of Christ in our stead, as our sin bearer, all who receive Him are made partakers of the inheritance, having in Him redemption through His blood, the forgiveness of sins (Col. i, 13-14).

There is, however, another phase of the suffering question in Heb. ii, 10, where it speaks of bringing us to His glory and to His kingdom. It is our salvation being made perfect through sufferings. He is our high priest, who is our intercessor, for He was in all points tempted like as we are (Heb. ii, 18). Now, since by His atonement He has made us kings and priests unto God, having washed us from our sins in His own blood, and we are to reign with Him on the earth (Rev. i, 6), it is our duty to remember that to be fitted to reign with Him we must suffer with Him (1 Thim. ii, 12). By His atonement made fit for His presence, but by our suffering with Him here as He redeemed once made fit to fill the place in His kingdom which He is preparing for us, while He prepares for us here, we have a little light on the great mystery of the believer's sufferings as seen in our psalm.

If by His grace we are patient under all our trials we are winning for ourselves a special crown—the crown of life and honor. But if by our suffering with Him here as He redeemed once made fit to fill the place in His kingdom which He is preparing for us, while He prepares for us here, we have a little light on the great mystery of the believer's sufferings as seen in our psalm.

CAPT. F. R. DESJARDIN,
Sch. "Stroker," St. Andre, Kamouraska.

The minister in a rural church gave out the hymn, "I Love to Steal Away Away," etc. The regular old procession being absent, his function developed upon a good old deacon, who commoned "I Love to Steal." Gradually he broke down. Raising his voice a little higher, he then sang, "I Love to Steal." At length he was in the third cough, he made a loud demonstration and roared out, "I Love to Steal."

He rose, and with the utmost coolness said:
"See our brother's propensities,
let us pray."

COMMUNICATION.

TO THE EDITOR,
Crossfield Chronicle.

DEAR SIR:—

Now that the winter has set in,
and the evenings are long, with the fine set of band instruments, and excellent talent for music, which no other town of its size can boast, it would be a fine thing for the citizens as well as the talent to get together and reorganize the band.

A Band Concert now and again this winter would be very much appreciated by the citizens, as well as furnishing finances for the aggregation.

A WELLWISHER.

NOTES AND COMMENTS.

Here is the way the papers will write up weddings ten years hence:
"The bride looked very well in a travelling dress, but all eyes were centered upon the groom. — He wore a dark suit that fitted his form perfectly and in his dainty gloves hands he carried a small rose. His curly hair was beautifully done, and a delicate odor of hair oil of the best quality floated down the aisle as he passed. The young people will miss him now that he is married. He is loved by all for his many accomplishments, his tender grace and his winning ways. The bride commands a good salary as bookkeeper and the groom will miss none of the luxuries to which he has been accustomed. A crowd of pretty men saw him off at the depot.

A wise woman once said that there were three follies of men that always amused her: The first was climbing trees to shake the fruit down, when if they would wait long enough, the fruit would fall itself;
the second was going to war to kill each other, when if they only waited they would die naturally; and the third was that they should run after the women, when if they did not do so the woman would be sure to run after them.

There are some people who do not talk about hard times, but go right along doing business and making themselves and others happy. Just as though they were right in the swim and leading the way. What is the use of always and everlastingly talking hard times; why not go ahead without grumbling and do the best you can.

Recently in an adjoining town,
the sheriff was offering the goods and accounts of a merchant for what he could get. The accounts amounted to $1900, and were sold for less than $9. Why? Because they belong to that class of people who never pay an honest debt, nor expect to pay one if they can help it. The prime cause of this state of things is the credit system. As the cancer is to humanity so is the credit system to the business world.
Politicians are quarreling about "Protection" and "Free Trade," but if the system of "pay as you go" could be impressed upon the people of this country, it would be a vastly greater benefit than either.
The credit system caters to the morbid desire of a certain class of people who live beyond their means.
It gives them a chance to get everything they want; not what they really want, but what they think they want. Then there is a class of people who lack moral stamina.

They never pay a book account, but may pay cash when they can't get credit. These human parasites are the cause of more real suffering than anything else under our government, excluding whiskey. The economy of nature, perfect as it is, lacks one thing—a jumping-off place for dead beats.

Would it not be a good idea to have a cleaning of backyards and stables. We have one of the healthiest towns on the north line and a little precaution will keep up the high standard of health now established.

HALTER PULLING

When a horse pulls back, a good way to break him is to put a strong head halter on with a good strap or rope. Put rope over pole at top of manger and down to front foot.
Buckle strap with ring in it above hoof and below fetlock. Tie halter in ring so horse will have about usual length from head to manger.
When horse pulls back, he will pull the front up and one or two trials is all he will attempt.

CANADA'S BIGGEST MAN PASSES AWAY

Jonathan Miller, the heaviest man in this part of the world, and one of the best known hotelkeepers in Western Ontario, died on Monday November 8th, at Carlow, a village a short distance from Goderich, where he has been keeping hotel for the past three years.

Mr. Miller was a son of the late Ben.
Miller, after whom the Village of Ben-Miller, a few miles from Goderich, was named, and for many years was in the hotel business there.

Subsequently Mr. Miller was for years
the proprietor of the old Albion Hotel, in Goderich, and its successor, the modern Bedford Hotel, and for a time was in the livery business here. Later he was proprietor of the Grip House Sea-forth, before going to Carlow.

Mr. Miller's enormous weight made him a notable character. He tipped the scales at 465 pounds.

He was 63 years of age, and was a mason.

The Casket, manufactured by the Globe stantial, this firm has turned out. The casket itself is six feet six inches long;

inside measurement 45 inches wide and 29 inches deep. There are eight handles, and all of which are reinforced with iron strips inside. It will require eight large men to carry and will not permit being slid into a hearse, a special wagon having been secured for the removal to the grave.
The shell is seven feet eight inches long,
four feet two inches wide, and 33 inches deep.

The Folly of the Mean

John D. Rockefeller never wears of impressing on the young the folly of mean and parsimonious habits. In one of his most recent interviews he said:

"These miserly people reap nothing but discomfort from their false economies. Take, for example, the case of Mrs. Silas Young of Sussex."

"Martha," said old Silas, one full day, "I think I'll go and get a few apples from the orchard."

He looked at her steadily. She said:

"Well, be careful now, Sil, only to pick the bad ones."

"Suppose there ain't no bad ones, Martha?"

"Then you'll have to wait till some goes bad, of course," the old lady snapped. "We can't afford to eat good, sound fruit with 3 cents a bushel."

"That's because Mrs. E. has a tiny baby, the Good Just sent," said her mother, gently, and after a moment's pause, the little girl said slowly, "Gracious, she must have been packed well!"

Why He Was a Heathen.

Sir Arthur Fanshawe recently related an amusing story of a Mahomedan servant, who, when asked his religion, replied:

"Beg pardon, sar, I'm a heathen."

"When asked by his master what he meant by a heathen, the man answered:

"Beg pardon, sar, a worshipper of stocks and stones."

"Confound it," remarked the master, "I can't keep a man like that in my service."

To which came the immediate rejoinder:

"Beg pardon, sar, in your highness's service no time to worship anything!"—London News.

The Duke was a little surprised at the royal highness again met the American, who assured him that the pipe was the sweetest he had ever smoked.

"I'm awfully pleased to hear that," replied the Duke, "because I found after I had given you the pipe, it was not one of mine at all."

WHY GIRLS SUCCEED.

The Business Maiden Must Be Careful With Her Pennies.

One of the hardest lessons the business girl has to learn is to save, says Barbara Borg.

It is difficult for youth, with its enthusiasm and ambitions and rose colored view of life, to anticipate want. Whereas for age isn't there a Prince charming coming one day who will take care of her?

It is difficult to save on $5 a week. Try it.

But nevertheless a girl should resolutely make herself save. And if she once gets the habit, if she acquires ever so small bank account, this in itself helps. It pays to start a saving fund, if only with $1, just for the little nicks it makes in the memory and the insistent voice with which it asks for more.

Many reforms are devised by business girls to help them save. One girl has a number of little envelopes labeled with her various needs—"luncheon," "car fare," "church," "board," "laundry," and so on. At the week when she gets her salary she slips into each envelope its requisite amount, and when it is due the money goes out. She is not the girl who must run and borrow of her landlady when the laundry comes or who must ask her friends at the office to loan her enough for her lunch the day before salary is due. This method of planning leisurely and calmly how she will spend her money enables her each week to set aside a little for saving.

Another girl puts away a certain amount when she gets her salary, says the business girl. I don't have to spend it. But though she saves by this method, she probably doesn't get as much out of what she spends as though she planned more carefully.

Planning in one form or another is the keynote to saving. Hasty buying and thoughtless spending are its deadliest enemies. The girl who wants to save should plan carefully her expenditures, her regular weekly expenses as well as the twice a year expenditure for clothes.

The girl who wants to save should not buy her clothes thoughtlessly. She should not buy on impulse. She should deliberately plan her clothes campaign, know beforehand what she wants, buy that and that only. She will be treated with better taste and better get the worth of her money.

This all may be tiresome and boring to do. But it will pay a girl to sort her money out the task resolutely. It puts a different aspect on life to have a few hundred dollars in bank. And it may put you in a position to grasp opportunities which will mean much to a happy and useful future, but which you might be afraid to venture without some money to your credit to fall back upon.

Disfiguring Torturing Skin Trouble

Cannot be Cured by Salves and Ointments—The Blood Must be Purified.

A blemished skin, irritating sores, pimples, eczema, salt rheum and other skin diseases are all signs of impure blood. You cannot cure eczema and other skin troubles with ointments and outward applications. These things may give temporary relief, but cannot cure, because the trouble is rooted in the blood and can only be removed by purifying and enriching the blood. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills speedily cure skin troubles because they enrich, purify and build up the impoverished blood that caused the trouble. As they feed and cleanse the blood the skin grows fair, the bloom of health returns, and the eruptions are found. No other medicine has ever had such wonderful results in curing all diseases due to impure blood. Miss Elizabeth Gillis, Kensington, P.E.I., says—"Words can hardly express how grateful I feel for what Dr. Williams' Pink Pills have done for me. For seven years when I began their use I was troubled with salt rheum. My hands and arms were nearly always a mass of torturing cracks and sores. I tried several doctors and spent a great deal of money without getting any benefit. Finally my hands seemed to be getting worse all the time. Finally my brother persuaded me to give Dr. Williams' Pink Pills a trial and I am happy to say they have completely cured me. I used in all seven boxes, and I would not be without them in the case of this kind if they cost five dollars a box instead of fifty cents. I hope my experience will be of benefit to some other sufferer from skin trouble."

These pills are sold by all medicine stores and will be sent by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 by The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

ROAD TO CROW'S NEST

RAILWAY LINE IS SURVEYED THROUGH NORTH KOOTENAY

It is Believed that the Harriman System is at the Back of the Undertaking, and that Road is Designed to Connect with Oregon Short Line—Will Meet Crow's Nest Road at Burnsville.

Frank, Alta.—The surveying crew in the employ of the Carbon Hill Coal company, running a railroad survey up the South Fork of the Old Man river to cross the main range via the North Kootenay pass, is now nearing the summit and it is expected the work will be completed before severe weather sets in. Engineer Winter in charge of the work was in Frank the first of the week. He states that as the progress was not so rapid as expected rather unfavorable conditions are being made and that he expects to finish the survey to the summit at least.

Contrary to the supposition that has been generally with regard to the building of a railroad through the North Kootenay pass, which has been that a long tunnel at the summit would be necessary in order to get a reasonable grade, Engineer Winter states that no tunnel will be necessary and that a very fair grade will be obtained.

There has been much speculation indulged in as to who is behind the Carbon Hill company project but no move has thus far been made calculated to tip off the hand of the real projectors. Many people are of the belief, however, that it is a Harriman system undertaking, designed to connect ultimately with the Oregon Short Line.

That it is a bona fide railroad building project and not a mere speculation is indicated by the fact that the road is being located in the most direct line leaving only the cross sectioning to be done. It is said that contracts will be let early in the fall and the work of construction. The line will connect with the Crow's Nest road at Burnsville.

Used a Horsewhip on Mr. Churchill

Bristol, Eng.—A wild-eyed suffragette armed with a horse whip, attacked Winston Churchill here. Churchill and his wife had just arrived by train, and the woman suddenly darted out from the crowd and commenced to belabor the cabinet minister with the whip. Churchill promptly seized his assailant, and after a struggle, succeeded in wrenching the whip from her hand. The woman was arrested and imprisoned.

At the police station Churchill's assailant was identified as a woman named. She was smartly cowed. The officers who made the arrest said that the suffragette had been on the police line on the station platform, and bringing down the lash of a long whip upon the minister's head. She was told, "Take that you brute." Churchill's hat broke the force of the blow, but the lash curled round his neck, leaving a red mark. As the police seized the woman she pointed scornfully at the minister, denting his forehead. She then face flushed with excitement, cried: "That's what you've gotten and you will get more of the same from British women."

Gambler Cannot Evade This Law

Ottawa.—H. H. Milne proposed amendments to the criminal code in respect to race track gambling will contain a number of important clauses. One clause will read: "The word 'place' includes any place whether enclosed or not, and whether it is, or is not, a fixed place and whether there is, or is not, an exclusion of the public." The object of this clause is to overcome the ruling of the courts that when a bookmaker's operations are carried on in a place, he cannot be said to have occupied a fixed place for the purpose of carrying on his business.

The Wheat Crop for Year Very Good

Washington.—There has been an increase of nearly three hundred million bushels, or fully one-sixth, according to the United States department of agriculture, in the production of wheat recently harvested in six countries of the northern hemisphere, which in 1906 produced practically two-thirds of the world's supply. These countries embrace Canada, Russia, Hungary, Rumania, the United States. After two years of unusually abundant yields, the world's production of wheat this year, according to reliable trade estimates, will fall to a lower point than in any year since 1902.

Will Get Ft. William Elevators

Regina.—Negotiations are on foot for the purchase of the Fort William grain elevators at Fort William by the Grain Growers Co. It is understood that negotiations are progressing favorably, and the deal will likely be closed before long. The control of the terminal elevators would place the Grain Growers Grain Co. in a very strong position, as the company is backed by the great majority of the farmers of the west. It is virtually a farmers' move.

Comet is Sighted

Ottawa.—The officials at the Dominion observatory have made their first observation of Halley's comet. The experiment was successful, and the comet was found to be of the 10th magnitude. It will not be visible to the naked eye for some weeks yet.

HISTORIC DATA GIVEN CANADA

Original Correspondence of Governor-General from 1791 to 1860

Ottawa.—A most important gift has been made to the people of Canada by the British government. This is the complete and original correspondence between the Governor-General to the Home Office from the year 1791 to 1860, the period during which Upper and Lower Canada were separate provinces.

After a cursory glance over some of the papers Dr. Doughty, Dominion archivist, in whose care they have been placed, is unable to say that they will have the effect of modifying in some cases, and of correcting in others, data which have hitherto been considered historically accurate. The correspondence deals with such interesting subjects as the division of the country into Upper and Lower Canada in 1791, the abolition of slavery in Upper Canada in 1793, the exclusion of judges from parliament in 1811, the first treaty with the Northwest Indians in 1817, the Earl of Selkirk's signing in behalf of King George III, the rebellion of 1837, the beginning of difficulties regarding United States fishermen in British waters, and ending with the union of the two provinces under the name of the Province of Canada, the year after the death of Lord Durham.

Support for Georgian Bay Canal

London.—Sir Robert Perks has been advising from Ottawa which encourage the expectation that the Canadian ministers are prepared to adopt an attitude of more practical sympathy with the Georgian Bay canal scheme, especially in view of the better outlook for Canadian finances.

Sir Robert, who is revisiting Canada shortly, in a letter to his Lincolnshire constituents names his new Canadian business as the prime reason for his decision not to speak of reelection. He also strongly opposes the socialist tendencies of Lloyd George and Winston Churchill.

Sir Robert says: "I have arranged to take an active part in the construction of a great public work in Canada which will make a very considerable demand upon my time and compel me to make frequent visits to Canada, generally at the time when parliament is in session."

Want to Buy Hudson's Bay Stores

London, Eng.—It is learned on what seems to be authoritative that the London, Limited, which is one of London's greatest emporiums, has offered the Hudson's Bay Company $2,000,000 for its stores in Canada.

Mr. Burbridge, managing director of Hazelton, visited Canada last summer, going out at the same time as Lord Strathcona, and it is known that he made an exhaustive inspection of shop methods of the Hudson's Bay Co. at the various Canadian centers. Mr. Burbridge is also honorary treasurer of the Chamberlain Tariff Commission, and is keenly interested in the expansion of British trade with Canada. He is well backed up by influential British financiers, who have great faith in his judgment and experience.

RETURN TO THE FARM

PROMINENT RAILROAD MAN HAS A UNIQUE PLAN

Wm. C. Brown, President of the New York Central, Says the Farm is the Place for the Unemployed—Is Urging His Company to Establish Experimental Farms to Give Employment to the Idle.

New York.—Ligation enough for the present, argued men who manage railroads, further considered legislators; co-operation in the interests of fair dealing, proposed shippers, and others. These varied views on the great common carriers of the country were expressed at the first annual banquet of the Railway Business Association at the Waldorf Astoria. The association which is a sort of self-aided medium of connection between the railroads and the public had as its guests at the table more than six hundred interested in the subject.

George Post, president of the association, was toastmaster. The keynote in address was "Cooperation in Legislation and Concession by All Concerned."

W. Hephorn, of Iowa, author of the Hephorn Act, suggested that there were yet railroad matters over which the government should have control. For instance, he asked, what serious hurt could come from the government's power to be increased until approved by government authority?

John D. Rockefeller, president of the New York Central lines, declared that "in time of depression, our unemployed are the greatest problem we face, and suggested the increased pursuit of agriculture as a means to forestall such a crisis. He is inclined to recommend to the New York Central line that the road operate at its own expense a series of experimental farms."

He said that the rural districts the preponderance of political power, he said, "where it can be more safely lodged than in the hands of population, already ominously powerful in many of our states."

Americans Have Invested in Canada

Toronto.—That United States capitalists are interested in Canadian industries to the extent of at least $226,000,000 is the statement in an article in the Monetary Times, which has completed a four months' investigation. The following is the summary of the figures:

CHURCHILL OR NELSON

Reports on Two Routes are Submitted to the Railway Department

Ottawa.—The most interesting feature of the annual report of the minister of railways is the report for the people of the Canadian west, the remarks made by M. J. Butler, deputy minister on the Hudson Bay railway survey.

After referring in a general way to the various routes being surveyed since 1903, under John Armstrong, the deputy minister makes the following references to Armstrong's reports: "It appears that two routes have been found one to Fort Churchill, and the other having its terminal on the bay at Fort Nelson, on the river Nelson." He sets down the length of the Churchill route from The Pas at 465 miles, of which about 320 miles have been surveyed. And the cost at $11-00-00. The length of Fort Nelson route being 37 miles and estimated costs $8,000,000, in which both cases the cost of terminal work has to be added.

He considers that the probable total cost of either road would be seventeen or eighteen million dollars. This estimate, however, as he explains, is based on incomplete surveys and explorations.

Unit prices used in Dr. Armstrong's estimate are considered too low. He says that the cost of the Churchill harbor seems to be the best natural harbor on the west coast of the Hudson Bay, and that it is necessary to obtain the necessary depth for a commercial port.

He states that it is full of rapids and falls, and not much of use as a transport route. For the development of power for the electrification of the railway if desired, it would require a dam of 1000 feet requiring improvement by dredging a channel for a distance of about ten miles, which would probably be an easy matter.

Fish Catch of Canada 25 Millions

Ottawa.—The total value of the fish caught in the Canadian waters during 1908 was $25,481,065. This is the most valuable record made in the annual report of the fisheries branch of the department of marine and fisheries. The value in 1908 was less than that of 1907 by $48,964, and less than 1906 by $268,400. This was the second highest record, 1906 being the record year.

For that year the total revenue was $1,000,000. The value of the fish caught in the Canadian waters during 1908 was $25,481,065. This is the most valuable record made in the annual report of the fisheries branch of the department of marine and fisheries.

OPENING OF SESSION

MORE THAN USUAL INTEREST IS MANIFESTED AT CAPITAL

Brilliant Gathering at Opening of the Second Session of the Eleventh Canadian Parliament—Members are Already Discussing the Navy Estimates—New Members are Introduced.

Ottawa.—With the boom of guns from Nepean Point, with the banner of "Eagles Flying from every mast head of Parliament Hill, with all the usual pomp and spectacle of military escorts and guards of honor, with an unusually large concourse of notables present to witness the ceremony, His Excellency Earl Grey formally opened the second session of the eleventh parliament of Canada.

There was more than the usual interest manifested in the opening both on the part of members and on the part of citizens of the capital. It was the last occasion on which his excellency would officiate, his term of office expires next year, and the session will necessarily mark a new era in respect to Canada's relation to the empire and to the stage of the world's politics.

Members, who are gathered in larger numbers than usual for the opening, are already discussing the government's programme of naval legislation with more show of interest in naval matters than has marked any previous opening of recent years.

All the ministers of the crown were present with the exception of the postmaster-general, Hon. Rudolph Lemieux, who will not be back in the capital until the 15th inst. By the month. In addition to the attendance in the senate chamber of the usual number of cabinet ministers, there were the three lieutenant-governors, namely, His Hon. Lieut. Gibson, of Ontario, His Hon. Lieut. Patterson, of Quebec, and Hon. Alexander Henderson, governor of Yukon.

The new Chinese consul at Ottawa and the German consul from Montreal were also present. It was made in the consular corps present. A feature of the opening proceedings in the Commons was the introduction of a new minister of the crown, Hon. Mackenzie King, by Sir Wilfrid Laurier and Hon. Mr. Patterson. Mr. King's mother, who saw many years ago her father, William Lyon Mackenzie introduced to the old parliament of Upper and Lower Canada, looked down from the gallery this afternoon on the introduction of her son as the youngest cabinet minister in the history of Canada.

His excellency, who was escorted from Rideau Hall by a company of Princess Louise Dragoon guards and was received by Sir Richard Croker, a guard of honor from the Governor-General's Body guards, entered the chamber of the commons, and the members of the headquarters military staff in full panoply of gold lace and plumes, and the members of the commons, the Black Rod made the usual elaborate three bows and announced the attendance of the commons, the members being given the usual courtesy. The members headed by Speaker Macell, then trooped over to the commons, and were received by Premier Laurier and Sir Wilfrid Laurier and Sir Richard Croker in their Windsor robes, and the members of the nation the speech from the throne.

Shipping Poll West

Toronto.—At the annual meeting of the Ontario Fruit Growers' Association held at the Hotel St. Catharines Cold Storage Association, told how strawberries had been served on tables in Manitoba, and even in Saskatchewan, with all the relish of Toronto menus. In all about 600 carloads had gone west from the peninsula. Rates to Winnipeg were 66 cents per cwt., with proportionate rates to Portage and Brandon. Rates further west though were prohibitive to Ontario producers, as against the rates from the western states.

Titles For Police

Calgary.—The R. N. W. M. P. force includes among its officers three men who have been created in recognition for services rendered, members of the most distinguished order of St. Michael and St. George.

Only a few days ago the Commissioner Perry of the R.N.W.M.P., was created O. M. G., thus making the third in the force, who have the honor of having it conferred on them are Controller White of the R.N.W.M.P., and Inspector Jarvis, C.M.G., of the Calgary detachment.

C. N. R. Coast Fleet

Vancouver, B.C.—A story is being circulated here that Mackenzie & Mann are planning to put steamer lines on the Pacific. They will make application to Ottawa for subsidies for lines to China, Japan, Australia, and Honolulu, and also to the Cape of Good Hope, now at Marselles, are said to have been purchased by the Canadian Northern as a nucleus for their fleet. They will be delivered here early in the new year, and are to be operated by the Barclay Sound on the west coast as the first port of call.

Terrible Storm in Jamaica

Kingston, Jamaica.—From the fragmentary reports arriving here from the countryside, the damage resulting from the floods and storms which raged through the country has been enormous. The greater portion of the country has been badly damaged, while property in and around Kingston has escaped to the extent of $500,000. The record rain, fall from Nov. 8 to 10 was 48 inches. All the telegraph wires are down.

New Road Into Winnipeg to be Started

Winnipeg.—A despatch from Grand Forks, N. D., says that A. J. Earling, president of the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul railway, has announced that they would extend their line from Fargo to Winnipeg, beginning early next spring.

SUDDEN DEATH OF ROBERT MURPHY.

A painful shock was felt in town on Tuesday morning, when news arrived from Glenbow that Bob Murphy had died suddenly at about 10:30 the previous night. He had not been very well lately, and only left Cochrane a few days before his death and was staying with Mr. L. Dolomyn while waiting to go to work.

Dr. Mayhood of Calgary was sent for and certified that death was due to heart-failure supervening on pneumonia.
The body was brought home on Tuesday, the funeral arrangements being in the hands of Messrs. Shaver and Co., Calgary.

Poor Bob, who was only 43 years of age, was of a quiet and gentle disposition liked by everybody who knew him.
Great sympathy will be felt for his brothers and the family, of whom Mrs.
J. J. O'Reilly and Miss Murphy, sisters, who live at the Coast, and are unable to be here in time for the funeral.

The funeral took place on Thursday morning, Mass for the Dead being said by the Rev. Father Hermes at the Roman Catholic Church at 10 o'clock, the Burial Service following.

The family of the deceased was represented by Mr. and Mrs. A. J.
Murphy, Mr. and Mrs. James J. Murphy,
Mrs. Shattuck and Earle Shattuck.
Others present were Mr. and Mrs. D.
Morrison, Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Simpson,
Mrs. and Miss R. Howard, E. Townsend,
R. W. Widdess, L. L. McDonald, D. P.
McDonald, Tom Fisher and many others. The body was carried from the Church by Messrs. V. Fisher, R. McLeod, W. J. Simpson and Wm. Dean and a large number of friends and acquaintances followed it, driving and on foot to the Cemetery on the hill, where the interment took place.

Much sympathy is felt for the family in their sudden and most unexpected loss. Cochrane Advocate.
